IOWA TESTS OF
 BASIC SKILLS
 PRIMARY BATTERY
 INDIVIDUAL PUPIL PROFILE

The second row of numerals, opposite "National Percentage Rank," tell how the scores ranked among those earned by pupils in the grade across the nation. The third row, "Local Percentage Rank," might have a row of numerals, when tell how the scores ranked when compared to those of pupils in the local school system.

The scores plotted on the chart are percentile ranks. The percentile rank for a given pupil is the percent of pupils who score lower. A percentile rank of 55, for example, means that the pupil did better than 55 percent of the other pupils who took the test. The range of scores is from a low of 1 to a high of 99.

The numeral 50 at the sides of the chart marks the middle of the chart and the middle of the score range. On each test, half (50 percent) of the pupils tested earn ranks of less than 50, and half more than 50. For this reason, son, 50 is an "average" score.

The letters printed on the vertical lines below the test titles show the ranks for each test. An "N" is printed on each line to show the NATIONAL percentile rank, the LOCAL percentile ranks are given, and "L" is also printed on each vertical line to show the LOCAL percentile rank. If a "B" is printed on the chart, this means that BOTH the national and local percentile ranks were the same or nearly the same.

A line may be drawn from the N for the first test to the N for the second test, then to the N for the third test, and so on to form a line graph or "skills line." The line connecting the N's is called the "national skills-line." If LOCAL personnel or tanks are reported, the L's may be connected to form a local skills-line. Whenever the skills-line is in the upper part of the chart, skills are above average. Whenever it lies in the lower part of the chart, skills are below average.
